

L&C Spring Job Fair Open to the Community

April 2 2012 4:30 PM

GODFREY – Lewis and Clark Community College hopes to match area residents with employers throughout the Metro East during the college’s annual job fair this Spring. The event, which has typically drawn more than 300 attendees each year, will welcome the public from 9 a.m. to noon on Wednesday, April 4 in The Commons on the college’s Godfrey campus.

“We have some new employers this year, which offers job seekers a wider array of employment opportunities. Our goal is to contribute to our area’s increasing job growth rate (IDES, 2012).

There will also be L&C representatives and area agencies on hand to assist attendees with all of their job-seeking needs,” said Alice Bunjan, manager of L&C Career and Employment Services.

“We recommend that individuals come dressed in professional attire with their resumes in hand, ready to interview and fill out applications on the spot.”
