EDWARDSVILLE - The Southern Illinois University Edwardsville Office of Graduate Admissions will host an open house from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Wednesday, April 12 in the Morris University Center Oak and Redbud Rooms.

Prospective graduate students will receive information on SIUE's more than 70 master's programs, post-baccalaureate certificates, specialist degrees, doctoral degrees and cooperative doctoral programs. Information will also be available on graduate admission requirements and financial support.

“We are excited to offer prospective students this opportunity to explore the possibilities of our diverse array of programs and discover why SIUE is an excellent option for the pursuit of an advanced degree,” said Jim Monahan, director of graduate admissions at SIUE. “Graduate admissions representatives will be onsite during the open house and will be happy to discuss the admission process.”

During the Graduate Admissions Spring Open House, the graduate school application fee will be waived for prospective graduate students who apply at the event—a savings of $40.
