

Slots Still Open for GED Orientation

August 1 2012 9:12 AM

GODFREY – Lewis and Clark Community College will be holding GED Orientations in early August, and there's still time to register.

"It is essential for students to attend an orientation session," said Val Harris, director of adult education at Lewis and Clark. "Research shows that this will streamline the student's enrollment process and get them into the right class, right away. They may even be able to start college this fall."

Students who plan on taking classes in Bethalto, Alton or at the college's Godfrey campus can attend the following morning or evening sessions:

- 6-9 p.m. | Monday, Aug. 6 & Wednesday, Aug. 8
- 9 a.m. - noon | Wednesday, Aug. 8 & Friday, Aug. 10

Now is the time to enroll in fall GED classes. Students may be eligible for special Bridge or ICAPS programs where they can earn college credit alongside their GED.
