SUNDAY'S RESULT

ST. LOUIS 9, CHICAGO CUBS 0: The St. Louis Cardinals clinched their first National League Central Division championship since 2015 on Sunday, as Dexter Fowler, Matt Carpenter and Paul Goldschmidt all hit home runs in as the Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-0 Sunday afternoon at Busch Stadium.

Goldschmidt opened up the scoring with a first inning RBI single that scored Fowler to make it 1-0. Marcel Ozuna then grounded into a double play to score Tommy Edman with the second run, then in the second, Fowler hit his 19th homer of the season to center field, a two-run shot with winning pitcher Jack Flaherty aboard, to make it 4-0 for the Redbirds.

A third inning RBI single by Ozuna scored Goldschmidt, but the biggest blow came later in the inning, as Carpenter unloaded a three-run shot to right field, his 15th of the year. Ozuna and Yadier Molina scored ahead of Carpenter to make it 8-0. Goldschmidt rounded out the scoring with a solo blast to center, his 34th of the year, to make the 9-0 final.

Flaherty pitched seven brilliant innings, allowing only two hits while striking out six and walking only one. Giovanny Gallegos and Carlos Martinez pitched the eighth and ninth innings to wrap up the division for St. Louis.

It was the final game for Cubs manager Joe Maddon, who announced before the game that he would not return as manager for the 2020 season.

The Cardinals ended with a record of 91-71 and received the third seed for the National League playoffs. St. Louis opens the National League Division Series at Eastern Division champion Atlanta on Thursday, with the start time to be announced. This will be the first postseason meeting between the Cardinals and Braves since a controversial 2012 National League Wild Card Game, won by St. Louis, who eventually lost to San Francisco in the National League Championship Series that year.
