

Lewis and Clark/Phillips66 Host NAPTA Expo

March 14 2014 10:59 AM

Edwardsville - Dave Young, director of sales with Simtronics, shows Dale Hagan, facilities supervisor at Mallinckrodt Pharmaceuticals (foreground), a simulation program for process industries during the Lewis and Clark Community College/Phillips 66 North American Process Technology Alliance (NAPTA) Midwest Training Expo on the college's N.O. Nelson Campus in Edwardsville on Thursday. Industry professionals and educators from around the nation are attending the training expo designed to unite employers and educators in the Process Technology field. The North American Process Technology Alliance (NAPTA) is the standard-bearer of the Process Operations

Technology (PTEC) curriculum and audits PTEC degree programs in North America and endorses those that meet its criteria. Lewis and Clark's PTEC Program has received the highest NAPTA endorsement.
