

The Illinois Commission to End Hunger Holds Inaugural Meeting following Gov. Pritzker's Appointment of Fourteen New Commissioners

June 18 2020 2:09 PM

CHICAGO – Today, Deputy Governor Sol Flores and Greater Chicago Food Depository CEO Kate Maehr, convened the first meeting for the Illinois Commission to End Hunger. Last year, Governor Pritzker restructured the Illinois Commission to End Hunger and named Flores and Maehr Co-Chairs. The newly rebooted commission will convene listening sessions with stakeholders across the state and recommend measurable solutions toward drastically reducing hunger in Illinois amid the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

“Today is the start of an ambitious, yet vital, plan to reduce hunger in Illinois,” said Governor JB Pritzker. “The COVID-19 pandemic and recent civil unrest has dramatically increased food insecurity in communities throughout the state while further exposing the root causes of hunger, including poverty and racial inequity. The commission’s renewed focus builds upon prior work and will produce actionable steps to change the lives of thousands of families across our state.”

Governor Pritzker announced the following appointments to the commission prior to the first meeting:
