

Pie in the Face

May 13 2014 3:19 PM

Kathy Strasser, Occupational Health nurse at Alton Memorial Hospital, got to throw a pie in the face of Brad Goacher, vice president of operations at AMH, on Tuesday afternoon. As part of National Hospital Week, raffle tickets were sold giving employees a chance to throw a pie (actually, a pie plate filled with whipped cream) into the face of an AMH manager or member of senior leadership. Six winning tickets were drawn and six managers/senior leaders got splattered. Proceeds from the ticket sales benefited the AMH chaplain's fund.
