ST. LOUIS REGION – NASCAR officials today announced the 2022 schedule for the Camping World Truck Series and World Wide Technology Raceway, as rumored, will host a doubleheader on the weekend of June 4-5. The NASCAR Camping World Truck Series Toyota 200 presented by CK Power will open the weekend on June 4 as a lead-in to WWTR's inaugural NASCAR Cup Series race on June 5. Starting times and television assignments will be announced later.

WWTR's Camping World Truck Series races have established many young drivers as prime talent, ready for the sport's premier class. Victories on WWTR's challenging 1.25-mile oval – with two different sets of turns – have helped propel Darrell “Bubba” Wallace Jr., Cole Custer, Christopher Bell and Ross Chastain to rides in the NASCAR Cup Series. Sheldon Creed's win at WWTR in 2020 helped cement the series championship.

“Our NASCAR Camping World Truck Series race has been a staple on our schedule since 2014 and has always produced incredible racing action,” said WWTR owner and CEO Curtis Francois. “Combining the Truck Series and the NASCAR Cup Series on the same weekend was the perfect complement to our schedule. This is the perfect time to plan a weekend getaway to World Wide Technology Raceway for two full days of history-making entertainment.”

Race weekend schedules and event pricing will be released on Monday, November 1.

Early weekend-ticket purchase options will be offered to existing ticket holders and priority deposit holders beginning Monday, November 15.

Public weekend combo tickets will go on sale Wednesday, December 1.

Single-day NASCAR Cup Series and single-day Truck Series tickets will be released for sale on Wednesday, December 15.
