

Madison County Officials Set To Allocate More Than $19 Million In American Rescue Plan Act Funding

December 2 2021 4:26 PM

EDWARDSVILLE — Officials are set to approve resolutions starting this month to spend $19.3 million in American Rescue Plan Act funding for infrastructure, storm water, cybersecurity, pandemic response and law enforcement projects in Madison County.

County officials selected 17 projects, totaling $19,343,275, for the second round of the $25.5 million of ARPA funding the county received in May from the U.S. Department of Treasury. The funding was the first half of $51 million the county is receiving, with the second half set to arrive in 2022.

"The county is using these funds for projects it otherwise would not be able to do," Chairman Kurt Prenzler said. "We didn't anticipate receiving this money and now our task is to spend it legally and responsibly."

In June, the county spent its first ARPA funds to improve its cybersecurity systems.

"Cybersecurity is important," Prenzler said. "Earlier this year, we saw ransomware attacks on the City of Alton and St. Clair County. Now it's happened at Lewis and Clark Community College."
