

Southwestern's Wild signs with Quincy University

by Dan Brannan, Content Director
February 5 2015 11:05 AM

Troy Wild, a Southwestern offensive lineman, has signed a letter of intent to attend Quincy University, a Division II school, on scholarship.

Wild was the anchor of the Piasa Birds' offensive line this past season, a squad that averaged 28 points per game and close to 400 yards a contest on offense.

"He has not only the size to compete at the next level (6-foot-5, 295 pounds), but he was also one of the most intelligent players I've coached," Southwestern head coach Aaron Fricke said. "His teammates and coaches couldn't be more proud."