

The 22nd Annual Whitaker St. Louis Filmmakers Showcase Runs July 15-24

June 17 2022 1:57 PM

ST. LOUIS - The Whitaker St. Louis Filmmakers Showcase, an annual presentation of the nonprofit Cinema St. Louis (CSL), serves as the area's primary venue for films made by local artists. The Showcase screens works that were shot in the St. Louis region or were written, directed or produced by St. Louis-area residents or by filmmakers with strong local ties who are now working elsewhere.

The Showcase's 14 film programs range from narrative and documentary features to multi-film compilations of fiction, experimental, and documentary shorts. Feature programs include Q&As with filmmakers. In addition to the film programs, this year's event includes four free master classes focused on key aspects of filmmaking.

All film programs screen exclusively at Washington University's Brown Hall. Three of the master classes are presented as live streams at specific times/dates during the Showcase, with the legal-issues master class offered both in person at the offices of Capes Sokol and as a live stream.

The July 24 closing-night awards presentation will take place in the Duck Room at Blueberry Hill from 7-11 PM, with awards announcements at 9 PM. Announced during the event will be nearly two dozen Showcase jury awards — including a $500 prize for the overall Best Showcase Film. Cinema St. Louis staff will also announce the films that will move on to the 31st Annual Whitaker St. Louis International Film Festival in November.

The 63 films and four master classes in this year's Showcase include the following:

- All Gone Wrong: Josh Guffey's electrifying crime drama, which stars Tony Todd ("Candyman"), premiered at the 2021 St. Louis International Film Festival.
- Animated and Experimental Shorts: Nearly a dozen animated and experimental works are presented in a colorful shorts program.
- Doc Shorts: An illuminating and thoughtful documentary-short program features a wide range of stories and subjects.
- Master Classes: A series of four free master classes — featuring filmmakers and industry professionals — that focus on key aspects of filmmaking: Missouri Stories Lab, Editing, Development, and Legal Issues.
- Narrative Shorts: Five eclectic narrative-short programs include comedies, dramas, supernatural films, and thrillers.
- A New Home: Showcase alum Joe Puleo ("America's Last Little Italy") returns with this examination of the '90s Bosnian war, genocide, and subsequent mass diaspora settling in St. Louis.
- Night Life: Seth Ferranti spent several years filming and editing this riveting documentary about the outreach of the Rev. Ken McKoy, whose Night Life ministry patrols the city's North Side on a mission to address issues of mental health, gun violence, and drug abuse.
- Poetry in Motion: St. Louis Poets Take the Mic: Dana Christian directed this insightful documentary on the local poetry scene.
- Un-resolved: Multi-hyphenate Bruce J. Cunningham directed, wrote, edited, produced, and co-starred in this epic tale of revenge and violence.
- Winemaking in Missouri: Catherine Neville ("tasteMakers" on Nine Network) co-directed this juicy and informative overview of the history of wine production in the Show-Me State.

The Whitaker Foundation again serves as the Showcase's title sponsor. The foundation's twofold mission is to encourage the preservation and use of parks and to enrich lives through the arts. The Chellappa-Vedavalli Foundation is underwriting both the Showcase's master classes and the $500 prize for the Best Showcase Film.

The event's other sponsors include Capes Sokol, EditMentor and EditStock, Missouri Arts Council, Missouri Film Office, NOW Talent Management, Regional Arts Commission, St. Louis Public Radio, TalentPlus, and Urban Chestnut Brewing Co.
