It is very rare in this day and age for a family to celebrate five generations. Rena Reed, 92, recently was able to mark that significant birth milestone with her family.

Rena's great-granddaughter, Brynn Huddleston recently had the family's first baby in the fifth generation. The newborn is named Zaviah White.

"We have a very close family," Mona Norton said. "The baby was born on Brynn's mom's 40th birthday."

Rena Reed survived breast cancer when she was 75 and also had COVID-19 this past year and has struggled some with after-effects, but continues to be strong, Mona said.

"She loves her family and all her grandkids," Mona added about Rena. "She is one of the sweetest people I know."
