

New Executive Director joins Foxes Grove

June 18 2015 4:37 PM

Foxes Grove Supportive Living Community is proud to announce that Stacey Noble-Loveland has been named executive director of the Community. Located in Wood River, Foxes Grove provides a lifestyle of comfort and wellbeing for seniors in an elegant, maintenance-free atmosphere. “Foxes Grove is a true gem,” says Noble-Loveland. “I am very excited to be here and look forward to providing seniors with comfortable, safe, independent living while also providing them the support they need. I am thrilled to work with our wonderful, caring staff, which is so dedicated to our residents.”

Noble-Loveland was most recently the Care Transitions Coordinator for Senior Services Plus. She received a master’s degree in Gerontology from Lindenwood University in 2012. A native of Alton, Noble-Loveland is a member of numerous organizations and serves as board president of Alton Main Street; as an ambassador for the Riverbend Growth Association, as well as a mentor for their Young Adults Committee; as a member of the Adult Advisory Committee for the Riverbender.com Community Center and for The Older Adults Health Council; and as co-chair of the Madison County Networking Professionals Group.
